Dwight's Home Benefit Bazaar And Lawn Fete

Plans have been completed for the Lawn Fete to be held at "The Homestead" on Saturday, July 16 from 2 to 10 p. m. Mrs. W. R. Moody and the board of managers for Dwight's Home, school indormary at Mt. The Garden Club At Polhemus Home Heard Fine Talk

A largely attended meeting of the Northfield Garden club gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Polhemus on Main street Monday evening. It had been scheduled as a lawn gathering at the Polhemus home and the outdoors had been set for a festive meeting among the beautiful flowers and plants. The darkening sky and the heavy downpour of rain, however, made it necessary to move indoors where in the various rooms the tables were set for the picnic meet.

After the "eats" had been disposed of and the social time ended, President I. J. Lawrence called the members to order to listen to reports and approve some new business. The flower show in the town hall was said to have produced a small profit and the next meeting for August first will be held on the lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Merrifield. The meeting of Aug. 29 will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence in West Northfield.

The speaker of the evening was introduced as our new resident, Dr. Edward Fairbanks, who had spent his life in India in missionary work and he spoke of the floriculture of that land and described its peculiar trees, its unusual flowers and its beautiful birds. Appreciation was voiced by all for his most interesting talk and for the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Polhemus. The meeting of Aug. 29 will be the annual meeting.

Missionary Conference Is Holding Sessions On Seminary Campus

The Northfield Missionary conference convened Monday evening on Round Top for the opening meeting of a week's continuous services and classes. From all parts of the Atlantic seaboard states women from many of the important Protestant churches have arrived for the purpose of Bible study and consideration of the missionary enterprise both in America and abroad. The chairman is Mrs. Cula G. Plummer of Melrose.

The conference is divided into two general sections, one for the older and more experienced women and the other for the younger women, nearly all of whom live in tents arranged by denominations into camps. An innovation this year is the presentation of material in classes for the girls in the form of a laboratory, so that the members of classes in Bible, Worship and Missions will experiment, explore, and find facts regarding the subject. The results will be shared in a symposium to be given on Friday night in the auditorium.

The Bible study hour each morning at 8:45 for the adults will hear Dr. Caroline L. Palmer of the Biblical seminary in New York, whose subject is Great Chapters from Isaiah and their Use in the New Testament. The girls at the same hour will hear Dr. Emily J. Werner of the Biblical seminary on Finding Out What It Takes and another class by Rev. Ruth S. Conant of Hartford on The Acts - Then and Now.

The second hour is devoted to Missionary Education. For adults Gertrude Schultz, chairman of the Central committee on United Study of Foreign Missions, teaches a course called Moving Missions. Rev. John W. Thomas, whose work is in cities for the American Baptist Home Mission society, teaches The American City and Its Church. Hazel V. Orton of the Missionary Education Movement teaches a taster's course of missionary books. For the girls the missionary education courses are as follows: Mrs. Katherine V. Gates of the Hartford Theological seminary on Dinabandhu; Dr. William Lloyd Ives, pastor of St. James Presbyterian church, New York City, on City Shadows; Mrs. Elizabeth Brubaker of the Tennessee Wesleyan college, on The How and Why of Worship; Alice Murdoch, assistant to the pastor at the Bridgeport First Methodist Episcopal church on Personal, Public and Program Preparation.

A half-hour worship meditation is led by Rev. Hilda S. Ives of the Andover-Newton Theological seminary at 10:35. Music and the choir are directed by Marguerite Hazard of the School of Sacred Music at Union Theological seminary, New York, and Mrs. Walter C. Stevens, organist and choir director at the Park and Congregational church, Worcester. At 12 o'clock the missionary education courses are repeated for those unable to attend the earlier classes. The only additional course is by Mrs. Ives The Mission of the Church for the young people at 12.

Worship services each evening are addressed by the following: Rev. R. K. Morton, pastor of the Second Congregational church of Palmer, Tuesday; Rev. Luther A. Cotwald, missionary to India for the Lutheran denomination, Wednesday; Thursday, Rev. S. B. Howard, New York Baptist Mission, and an illustrated lecture on The Church and the City. Mrs. Walter Stevens presented an organ recital at 9:15 Thursday night. Friday evening there will be a symposium on Cities participated in by Ruth E. Murphy of New York, Alma B. Clifford, a worker among Puerto Ricans, Rev. Horation A. Hill, teacher of Negro minister and volunteer workers, New York City; and Rev. Paul A. Buffa, minister of an Italian church, New York.

A dramatic presentation of world-wide need and service will be made Saturday afternoon at 3:30 in the auditorium. The Round Top service on Saturday will be led by Mrs. Hilda Ives of Portland. Following that service the conference will enjoy a bonfire.

The speaker Sunday morning at the auditorium service at 11 will be the Rev. Frederick Buckley Newell, D. D., secretary of the New York City Society of the Methodist Episcopal church, whose subject is A Faith to Live

Nearly 50 Members Of Historical Society Visited Quabbin

Last Friday was a perfect day, although quite warm. It was the day fixed for the historical pilgrimage to the Quabbin valley, where now is going on the destruction of entire villages within the area for the new reservoir. The work of construction of the various dams is proceeding and much activity is evident everywhere. Already most of the homes, stores, schools and public buildings have been removed and there are only a few remaining families. Gathering at Northfield Center, the long line of automobiles proceeded down route 63 to No. 2 to Orange, where the road to the valley was taken and by a series of cross-overs, the important places were visited. To Miss Maud Hamilton, who marshalled the facts for the tour belongs much credit as she led the group at a moderate pace to many important places. Dana was the first stop and here natives gladly gave information. Enroute the various dams were visited and stops made. Construction work now going on proved interesting as did the administration building for the engineers of the District. Greenwich and Enfield were visited. At the outcrops, an engineer permitted an inspection of the building and gave a most interesting talk full of information upon the whole project.

Towns which will be covered by the waters of the reservoir include Dana, Enfield, Prescott and Greenwich, including a relocation of the lines of six towns and three counties. The large reservoir, which will probably take three years to fill will have a varying depth of 51 to 150 feet, with a shore line of 118 miles and covering an area of 38 1/2 square miles. The greatest length of the reservoir will be 18 1/2 miles. From this reservoir, where the waters of the Swift River are impounded, will lead a tunnel 24 1/2 miles long, 11 feet wide and 12 feet high through the rock and under a river to the Wachusett reservoir from whence the water flows to and supplies the metropolitan district of Boston and other communities. The only tunnel in the country to exceed it in size is the Hetchy-Kelchy tunnel in California which is a half-mile longer.

The pilgrimage was probably the most successful one ever undertaken by the society and those who went along expressed much satisfaction with the tour. Nothing happened to mar the pleasure of anyone. Returning via Belchertown, the party picnicked in a fine pine grove along the highway and afterward each car was seen to disappear on the homeward stretch via Amherst.

Among those who participated in the journey were Misses Maud and Amy Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Smith, Joseph R. Colton, Dr. Florence Colton, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Barr, Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Merrifield, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Alexander, Miss Daisy Holton, Mrs. C. A. Hodgdon, Mrs. C. C. Stockbridge and her daughter, Miss Louise Stockbridge, Miss Amy Adams and Miss Lucy Jackson, Mrs. Mary Bardwell, Rev. and Mrs. George Bronson, Mrs. Chas. F. Taber, Mrs. Bert Willey, Mr. and Mrs. William Hoehn, Miss Ethel Lawrence, Miss Julia Austin and her mother Mrs. Austin, Mrs. Bessie Symonds, Mrs. J. H. Lazell, and their guest, Athanasius Cassavetis from Oklahoma.

At Virginia Camp

The heads of committees for the Virginia Camp for the 1938 season are as follows: Vegetable collection, Mrs. J. D. Bassette; parties, Mrs. Gordon Moody; transportation, Mrs. R. R. Hatch; flowers, Mrs. George Foster; books and magazines, Mrs. A. P. Fitt; annual concert, Mrs. E. M. Powell, Mrs. E. J. Livingston and Mrs. W. P. Stanley.

The directors of the camp met recently at the home of Mrs. W. R. Moody to discuss plans for this summer with Miss Harper, the head of the camp.

The big benefit concert will be held in the Auditorium on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 6. Save that date! With last year's money Miss Harper was able to buy 6 dozen much needed blankets and $25 worth of playground equipment. The money the friends in Northfield raise at this year's concert will be used to buy mattresses, coats and pillows.

The following counselors are giving their time and services generously: Dorothy Marshall of Northfield for two periods, Leeanna Fooks of Philadelphia, Katharine Day and Jean Calkins of New York. Miss Irene Bannon of China is again head counselor, and Miss Burt of the New York City Mission will assist.

The first group, which is here now, will leave July 19 and the second group will arrive on July 21.

One gentleman has already bestowed upon Virginia Camp one bushel basket of lettuce. Phone Mrs. J. D. Bassette, 66-4, for collection.

G. O. P. Officials Meet

Republican officials of Franklin county gathered at the Mansion House in Greenfield last night (Thursday) when this year's campaign was opened. Chairman Carroll L. Meins, of the Republican state committee, and Cong. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of North Attleboro, were the speakers of the evening. Guests were the chairmen and vice-chairmen of all town committees in the county and other party leaders. George W. Carr and Mrs. L. A. Polhemus of this town were in attendance.

Chairman Meins urged the older Republicans to be more progressive and the young Republican groups to be more conservative, while adding that above all both should be practical. He continued:

"It is possible to be progressive without throwing the party overboard to do it. The leaders of the Republican party have within the lifetime of the present younger generation initiated a large proportion of the socially significant measures subsequently kidnapped by the New Deal. In Massachusetts the Republican party has been the party of progress, leading this Commonwealth ahead of all others toward realization of the highest ideals. We are facing a crucial election for Congress and for state offices. No matter what theoretical appeal there may be in discussions of new parties, realignments or coalition, none of it can be more than a state of mind in 1938. Any flitting with those ideas means dissipation of our energies in the next four months. Within that period we have a definite job to do and the equipment with which to do it. No matter how progressive or how conservative our leanings may be, there is no need to break ranks now."

Hostel Invites You

The local committee of the Youths Host in Northfield invites its friends to look over the hostel on the afternoon of Friday, July 22 when its food sale will be held on the lawn under the direction of a committee of women headed by Mrs. Carroll Miller. Besides the sale of food, refreshments will be sold and a social atmosphere created. Mr. Quinlan has also offered the use of his saddle horses to enliven the event, as part of the entertainment. Make a visit to the hostel that afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock.

What Is It All?

What is it all when all is told, This ceaseless toiling for fame or gold, The fleeting joys or bitter tears? We are here for only a few short years. Nothing our own but the silent past. Loving or hating, nothing can last. Each pathway leads to the dust and mold. Oh, what is it all when all is told? What is it all? A grassy mound, Where, day or night, there is never a sound. Save the soft low moan of the passing breeze As it lovingly rustles the silent trees.

Or a thoughtful friend, with whispered prayer, May sometimes break the stillness there, Then hurry away from the gloom and cold. Oh, what is it all when all is told?

What is it all? Just passing through— A cross for me and a cross for you.

Ours seem heavy while others are light, But at last God maketh all come right.

He "tempers the wind" with His loving care, Knowing the burden that each can bear,

Till He changes life's gray to His heavenly gold— Ah, that is all when all is told!

Mrs. Teresa Beatrice O'Hare

PURCHASING POWER
May, 1938, Compared with May, 1937

THE above chart, showing how the average American fared in national income changes in the last twelve months, is based on the monthly consumers' study of Investors Syndicate, of Minneapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Public in May had a "real income" of 79 cents, or a decline of 21 cents on the dollar from the same 1937 month. This "real income" is not a subtraction of cash income and expenditures, but an average relative of these figures designed to show how living costs affect adjusted income dollars.

Cash income of Mr. and Mrs. Public in May was 76 cents for every $1 a year earlier. This decline of 24 cents on the dollar resulted from the following losses per dollar: wages 34 cents, salaries seventeen cents, and investment income seventeen cents. Other income was down thirteen cents on the dollar.

Rents were up one cent on the dollar last May as compared with the same 1937 month, food was down nine cents, clothing was off three cents, and miscellaneous items were down six cents.

EDITORIAL

If we are to have a lift from the depression, big business and little business must be accorded consideration by the government. The merchandising field should be stabilized. Congress must wake up to the fact that business must be accorded the privilege to operate in a free country as well as the individual. There must be some freedom of action accorded to all in the conduct of their affairs. Taxes bearing so heavily upon all, begins to cause worry. Nothing seems in sight except "relief" something for nothing for which we may all have to apply.

A new Congress will be elected by the American voters on Nov. 8. Thirty-five Senators and 436 Congressmen will be selected on that day. This new Congress which takes office in January, 1939, will have to face important matters and make decisions in that year. It behooves voters everywhere to consider carefully the candidate who comes forward to ask their vote. We will select our representative in this first district. Let's make sure the man we send to represent us in Congress is a statesman and not merely a politician.

Resplendent Summer

Tis here with song,
Beauty and flowers;
Up, up, fly to the silent hills;
Fling all care aside,
Stroll to verdant fields of
White, yellow and crimson hues,
Neath deep blue skies
And a summer sun.

Scan through her palace sublime
In rapt tranquility.

O'er green carpeted lawns,
Her shadows lie at our feet,
When July days are here . . .
Then 'tis resplendent summer.
—Clair W. Cady, Northfield, Vt.

In 1859 there were 329 vessels employing 10,000 hands and representing a $12,000,000 investment registered from New Bedford . . . The anchors of the "Constitution" and the first cast iron plows were made at Hanover . . . Berry Pond located on the Pittsfield State Forest, is the highest water body in the state—elevation 2150 feet . . . Massachusetts by 1960 should have a population of approximately 4,450,000 people, the State Planning Board experts estimate, as shown in a comprehensive study issued by the Board this week.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Spoor of Kingston, N. Y. spent last week-end with Mrs. Spoor's sister, Mrs. William Hoehn and Miss Ethel Lawrence in Northfield. Mrs. Spoor was the former Mrs. William Hoehn and enjoyed many summers here with her mother.

TOO MUCH OF IT ALREADY!

The Back Yard Gardener

I don't know where you'll be on July 25, but I'll be on my way to the State college to attend the home garden sessions at Farm and Home week. Yep, my copy of the big program came thru the mail recently and I'm all of a twitter trying to figure out just which of the sessions I'll get the most from.

The home garden section this year is certainly a big one. They start off with a talk on "Gardens I Have Seen" by Arnold Davis, and knowing Mr. Davis I can assure you that he has seen plenty of gardens. Now if he can only tell all he has seen you are going to hear something.

And then I'm particularly interested in those tours which they have scheduled, because if there's one place where a fellow can really pick up ideas it's on a garden tour. You can hear a man talk for an hour, and if you are as thick headed as I am it may not make much impression but where you can see the ideas actually carried out it's a good deal easier to follow. In fact, the whole afternoon of that first day will be given over to garden tours.

But don't get the idea that tours will make up the whole program. There's a talk on gladioli by a lady by the name of Mosely down in New Bedford. There are several talks on controlling insects and diseases. Mrs. Rosetta Clarkson of Milford, Ct., will be on hand to talk about the herb garden, and Harry Glick of the State college psychology department who makes a hobby of dahlias will tell why and how he grows them. That one talk in itself should be worth the trip to Amherst.

Yes, and they are even going to have a lecture and demonstration on pottery to be given by a gentleman by the name of Henry Green from Petersham. So all in all, I should have one grand and glorious time listening to these talks, taking the garden tours, or just gab-festing with some of my old cronies whom I always meet at Farm and Home week time. In the meantime, I'm still plugging away trying to keep ahead of Mr. Pesky Pest and his sons and daughters and all the rest of his family. I'm thinking right now of gladioli thrips, those little insects which just raise heck with your glads. In case you don't recognize them, the females are shiny black with a conspicuous white band at the base of the front wings. The males are a little bit smaller and the white band isn't quite so conspicuous. The nymph stage is white turning to a sort of lemon color. Well, if you see anything that looks like these thrips, be sure to go to work on them for they certainly can ruin your gladioli border in short order.

The best control measures are taken during the dormant season by treating the bulbs, but right now you can keep the infestation at a low point by spraying with paris green using the following mixture: one ounce of paris green, 2 pounds of brown sugar, and 3 gallons of water. Be sure to keep these thoroughly stirred up while using. They say, where the thrips are thick you should make about four applications at 48-hour intervals, and then spray once a week after that as long as thrips are present.

It is reported from the office of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles that the registration of automobiles has fallen off in the state this year as compared with the figures of the previous year. On June 10 a total of 879,112 motor vehicles had been registered or 55,765 less than at the same date a year ago.

A BOOK REVIEW

The Meaning of Moody

This is much more than "another book" about Moody. No new facts have been revealed and no new stories told. The archives had been well searched already, and the contents exposed. It is rather an interpretation of Moody prepared especially for the younger generation who never saw him or knew him by a peculiarly qualified writer.

For Mr. Wilson is young enough in spirit to understand our youth and old enough in years to have grasped first-hand the essential Meaning of Moody. Mr. Wilson, too, as a newspaper man himself, has the newspaper mode of approach. And this age in a special way is decidedly newspaper age. Radio and movies are kindred. The point of view of young people is the newspaper point of view. The stories must be short; the language direct and vivid; the spirit wholly sincere. No cant, no antiquated dogma, no stereotyped clichés.

The spectacles through which Mr. Wilson catches his vision of Moody have all the latest improvements and are in the latest vogue.

So The Meaning of Moody is new, and we have a book there in which sees Moody with modern eyes, finds him, in spite of his hundred years, an essentially modern man, not "dated" in any sense, and which gives to the youth of today a sadly needed friend, an inspiring, lovable guide. A literary triangle, equilateral and equiangular—Mr. Moody, Mr. Wilson, and the Typical Youth of Today—an amazing harmony.

After a two-page chronology Mr. Wilson develops his theme in a series of eight chapters: The Ambassador; The Credentials; The Claim; The Decision; The Sequel; His Mission; His Church; The Issue.

The illustrations are few but well-chosen. Most impressive, at the very center, is a double-page view of the Brooklyn Rink, showing Moody and Sankey in the foreground of a vast crowd at one of their typical meetings. The theme is simple and searching. It is this, The Meaning of Moody is not to be found in his greatness as a man, but in his greatness as a Christian. He was perfectly loyal to Christ. He found in Christ the sole salvation of men. There is no other way today, no other name under heaven whereby we must be saved. His favorite and oft-repeated question was not, "Are you a Methodist?" "Are you a Protestant?" "Are you a Baptist?" "Are you a Catholic?" It was simply this: "Are you a Christian?" No hope in any creed or any political system. Christ is universal. Moody means Christ, the same yesterday, now and forever.

And so Mr. Wilson's book should be read and spread far and wide. Let parents take it up, reading groups, and churches. In a sad and sorry world it shows the one way out.

(The Meaning of Moody, by F. Whitwell Wilson. Published by Fleming H. Revell Co. $1.50. May be had at the Bookstore.)

Conforming to the recent decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission, rates for railroad travel will be advanced a half cent a mile. The Boston & Maine railroad announces that the two cent a mile rate will prevail on its lines in coaches for round trip tickets, however.
